FUR MAY FLY IN BOWERS' CASE

Captain Bowers, charged with violating Chapter 204 of the Revised Laws of Hawaii by obstructing a board of health agent in the performance of his duty, pleaded not guilty in the police court this morning and the case went over till Monday.

Attorney E. C. Peters appeared for the defendant, who was not in court. Attorney Lymer was on hand to prosecute. He seemed annoyed that Bowers was not present, and wanted the judge to have him sent for and the case tried right away.

Peters wanted the case put over in order to give him a chance to familiarize himself with it. He said that there was no particular urgency for an immediate trial.

Lymer took up the cudgels on behalf of an immediate trial. He said that the case was an emergency one and that he wanted it tried right off the reel.

Judge Monsarrat couldn't see any particular emergency, so remanded defendant till Monday. "There is no epidemic is there?" asked the judge, quizzically.

Lymer was half apologetic after his impassioned plea for a speedy trial, stating in court that he had to keep the matter on the jump in order to justify his existence.

Many bonhomies were bandied during the proceedings. Lymer told Peters that there was not in the entire Territory such a pastmaster in the art of delay as the latter.

Peters stated incidentally that the reason of Bowers' stand in the matter was that his premises had been overrun by twenty-eight or thirty Board of Health inspectors who seemed to like the place so well that they had all but camped there.

"They were doubtless attracted by Mr. Bowers' well-known hospitality," retorted Lymer.

"They were attracted by —" exclaimed Peters, but he did not finish his observation.

ALL BELIEVERS MUST OBEY LAWS

Joaquin G. de Silva, Seventh Day Adventist, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Monsarrat this morning for selling merchandise on the Sabbath.

Defendant made a lengthy statement, the gist of which was that as a Seventh Day Adventist he had kept the Saturday holy and had sold goods on the following Sunday to his customers who, like himself, had kept their Sabbath (Saturday) holy in accordance with the dictates of their conscience and the law of their God. He claimed that within a hundred yards of his store on Luso street seven other merchants were doing business at 8 a. m. of the Sunday in question without police interference.

The Sunday law, he said, was made in excess of federal authority and was in conflict with the fourth amendment of the Constitution of the United States and therefore unconstitutional. He claimed that the Sunday law seriously abridges the privileges of the Seventh Day Adventist in that it takes from him one-sixth of his time for labor.

The views of George Washington on the subject were quoted by de Silva.

In an interesting argument Milverton while admitting defendant's contention that the laws are not interference with a religious belief, stated that while a man was at liberty to believe in whatever doctrine he saw fit, he must at the same time obey the laws of the land. The wisdom of the age, he went on, had shown that mankind must have one day of rest each week and the legislature had seen fit to name the first day of the week for this purpose.

THE CLEVELAND'S RETURN VISIT

The Public Service Association is arranging its own program for the entertainment of the Cleveland crusaders on February 13, when the five hundred Westbounders arrive from San Francisco on their way around the world.

Any suggestions from the public as to how the best Honolulu has to offer the visitor of a day will be welcomed by the members of the Public Service Association, and the practical suggestions acted on. Mr. Bonine is putting lantern slides aboard the Cleveland today to be shown during her return trip to Honolulu.

BIG EDUCATIONIST MAY COME HERE

Superintendent Pope of the public instruction department, is hoping to have Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton in Honolulu before long. The commissioner has written Mr. Pope to the effect that the newly established division of rural education has just been established, and that the rural schools of the whole of the United States and the territories will be investigated.

The work is to be under the personal supervision of the commissioner, and he has written asking for all the information possible to get on the subject as relating to Hawaii.

The co-operation of all the state superintendents is asked for, and a request that books and pamphlets concerning the educational systems be forwarded to the commissioner is made.

Claxton is located in the Department of the Interior and he is keenly interested in the educating question. Superintendent Pope hopes to have the commissioner pay a visit to Hawaii.

"I would like Mr. Claxton to visit us and inspect our system. His opinion would be very valuable," said Mr. Pope yesterday, "and he might suggest changes, or a new system, that would benefit the Territory greatly."

The superintendent is busy on routine matters at present, taking up several matters that refer to new school buildings.

DUE CREDIT TO THURM.

A recent press document of information issued by the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Labor and Commerce, is headed: "The Hawaiian Islands: Their Development in Production and Commerce." The introductory paragraph gives credit for the data to "The Hawaiian Annual, 1912," which the compiler states "is issued annually by Mr. Thomas G. Thrum of Honolulu."

QUIET IN COURTS

The circuit courts are very quiet this week, there being no important cases on in any of them. Judge Cooper had nothing doing at all in his court this morning but a formal motion. There was nothing doing at all in Judge Robinson's court, nor has there been for several days. Judge Whitney rendered a decision this morning in a case which he heard yesterday, and then went to sit with the supreme court. The case in which he rendered a decision was that of Mary J. Davis versus H. T. Mills, a suit on a promissory note. Judgment was given for the plaintiff in the sum of $220, interest, costs and attorney's fee.

BURNS NIGHT PROGRAM.

Violin selection, "Scottish Reminiscences," W. A. Love.

Songs, "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon," "Comin' thro' the Rye," Miss Edith Rosslyn Collins.

Song, "O, for a Breath of the Moorland," C. G. Livingston.

Highland dance (in costume), Mrs. Sybil Campbell Reid.

Song, "Annie Laurie," R. H. Carter.

Accompanist, R. H. Carter.

CLARKE'S DOUBLE TALENT.

While there is as much discussion as ever today as to the relative virtues of the old school and the new in acting, there is but little doubt that the ideal in the art is found in the all too rare combination of the two. Simplicity in acting is, above all things, essential to a good performance, while all that the modern stage can do in the way of realism in production is necessary to have the ideal. There are but few actors today who from various circumstances have the advantages of having learned in both schools, but there are a few, and one of them is Harry Corson Clarke, who will open his four weeks' season at the Hawaiian Opera House on Monday, January 29, in his greatest acting bit, "What Happened to Jones."

The play, the reputation of being one of the funniest ever written, which, critics everywhere are unanimously of the opinion that it receives all the care and attention in production that are necessary to success. The bright particular star is said to be brighter than ever before, while his company is spoken of in terms of the highest praise.

spent here engaged in business and yet giving much time and attention to the cause of good government, good citizenship, education and philanthropy, have been fruitful in helpful and positive influences upon the Hawaiian community, which have had much to do with its material and moral progress and the establishment of a lofty public sentiment.

"We heartily and sincerely congratulate you upon your birthday—another milestone in a long life of usefulness—and we pray that good health and peace and happiness may ever follow you."

Several old friends had been requested to prepare remarks upon the varied phases of Mr. Bishop's life in these islands and associations with Hawaii.

The meeting is in progress as The Star's second edition goes to press.

Mills Institute Exercises.

In honor of the ninetieth birthday of Hon. Charles Reed Bishop, who has for many years been a liberal supporter of the Mills school and Kawaiahaeo seminary, the 300 students of these institutions held a celebration this morning in the Mills school building at which a very pleasant program was rendered.

There was an overture by the Mills school orchestra, followed by a recitation and a vocal solo and a "sheaf of quotations" from classical, English and American authors appropriate to the occasion.

The Kawaiahaeo seminary song was sung in chorus, and Hon. W. O. Smith then delivered an address, in which he outlined the history of Mr. Bishop's life and paid tribute to his good works. Next came a recitation, then the institute chorus, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," and a prayer by Rev. J. F. Cowan, D. D., of Kilauea.

The portrait of Mr. Bishop was draped with American flags and set of music. The students will send a cable of greeting to Mr. Bishop this afternoon.

This afternoon the citizens of Honolulu, on the initiative of several of Mr. Bishop's old-time friends, will assemble in the roof garden of the Alexander Young Hotel to pay the eminent nonagenarian the compliments of the occasion.

Mr. Bishop, as is well known, arrived in Honolulu when a young man. He made a fortune here and founded the bank of Bishop & Co., the oldest bank in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Bishop wedded Princess Bernice Pauahi, who, dying in 1884, willed her large estate to found and perpetuate Kamehameha schools for girls and boys.

Mr. Bishop removed to San Francisco between fifteen and twenty years ago, in that city taking leading rank as a financier. Before his departure, he had memory of his lamented wife, he had founded the Bernice Pauahi Bishop Museum, which is today one of the world-renowned institutions of that character, and erected a memorial chapel upon the campus of the boys' school.

After removing to San Francisco he created the C. R. Bishop Trust of his real and personal property in Honolulu, representing a value of one or two hundred thousand dollars, devoting the revenues therefrom to the payment of annuities to various churches and schools, also to several of his proteges, and to the creation of sundry scholarships in different private schools.

Under the monarchy Mr. Bishop was a member of the sovereign's privy council of state in two or three reigns, a member of the House of Nobles, while the tenure was a life one prior to the 1887 revolution, and for some years president of the Board of Education. He was the first president of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce. On one memorable occasion he came to the succor of the sugar-raising industry when it had drifted upon financial shoals, giving it recovery from which there has never since been a really serious relapse.

NEW THEATER

and explained, the problems of financing the erection of the theater building and of inducing companies of the first class to come to Hawaii were discussed generally and, after a number of suggestions had been made, the men interested came to the conclusion that it would be necessary to gather a great deal of definite information before any action could be taken or even any clearly defined plans entered upon. To this end A. H. Ford, A. L. MacKaye, C. D. Wright, James McCandless and H. L. Kerr will act as a committee and, when they have gathered all the necessary information that local business men would require before giving the enterprise their support, the undertaking will be seriously considered.

Mr. Clarke called attention to the fact that when the canal is opened the best English companies, which now go to Australia, could be easily induced to play in Honolulu. It seemed to be the general opinion that a guarantee fund of $25,000 a year would be sufficient to induce companies from the United States to come here, and it was proposed that this fund be raised by subscription. Upon these questions of finance, however, there were no decisions. The difficulty of getting stars, who are practically controlled by New York managers, to leave their companies and come here was a formidable objection to the proposal that the local theater maintain a skeleton stock company, into which the imported principals could be fitted for dramatic or operatic performances. On all of these questions there was so much doubt and uncertainty and such a dearth of facts and a detailed knowledge of the conditions which would hedge the local theater that it was impossible to do more than deal in generalities. All of those present, however, agreed that the theater was a necessity, not only as an inducement to tourists but also as an educational institution of which the community is greatly in need.

The theater which Architect Kerr suggests will have boxes, balcony and gallery, also an amphitheater on the roof with a pergola roof garden which can be used for local performances when the theater itself is not open. Among the other guests at the luncheon who have not been mentioned, were Professor J. W. Gilmore, W. A. Bryan, General M. M. Macomb, William Walters, C. H. Stanton and W. R. Farrington.
